

Certificate in Law Enforcement Administration

The Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice (CRCJ) at University of Texas at Arlington, and the Institute for Law Enforcement Administration (ILEA), which is one of seven institutes within the Center for American and International Law, Plano, TX, have signed a formal collaborative agreement to offer a Certificate in Law Enforcement Administration for police officers, supervisors, and managers. To receive the certificate, officers must complete four courses offered by ILEA (13 student course hours) and five courses (15 student course hours) offered by the Department of CRCJ at UTA. Courses to be taken at ILEA are LEA 200, School of Police Supervision; LEA 220, Fair Labor Standards Act Law; ETH 100 Ethical Decision Making; and ETH 150, Ethics Train-the-Trainer. On-line courses from UTA are CCJO 2310, Introduction to Criminal Justice; CCJO 3370, Ethnic and Gender Issues in Criminal Justice; CCJO 4330, American Judicial Systems; CCJO 4336, Comparative Criminal Justice Systems; and CCJO 4352, Criminal Careers and Behavior Systems.

The Criminology and Criminal Justice Department at UTA is well known for its critical role in educating current and future criminal justice professionals. To know more about their programs and courses access their website at www.uta.edu/criminology

The Institute for Law Enforcement Administration, which was founded in 1957, teaches law enforcement officials how to manage and lead more effectively while enhancing their professional development and integrity. Hundreds of police executives, managers and supervisor who are graduates of the ILEA serve in leadership positions in law enforcement agencies around the world. In 1992, the Center for Law Enforcement Ethics was established within the ILEA to navigate the ethical issues that go to the heart of policing. The ILEA website may be accessed at www.theILEA.org

This combined program through UTA and ILEA is designed to appeal to the busy law enforcement professional interested in developing practical skills in management and leadership while, at the same time, building a strong set of academic credentials.
